THE INGWELL SAGA CHAPTER 46.

Happy Christmas Everyone - How are you? Stuart has been trying hard to ignore the fact that he celebrated three score years and ten in the Summer (and that doesn't represent his score for 18 holes of golf – we wish!). We were in France at the time so, instead of a party, we went for a 'posh' lunch to our favourite restaurant - this picture was taken by our friends from the Dordogne who came down to celebrate the occasion with us.

Chas/Shawn and family also holidayed at our place in France at the end of August and met up with two sets of friends who were holidaying in the area at the same time – it's a small world. The girls (Rosie & Maria) like having their beach holiday with us and they enjoy swimming, skimboarding, and body surfing. This year they have added 'bronzer' and 'chaise longue' to their French vocabulary. Rosie (on the right) is now in her final year at primary school.

Dan spends lots of time travelling and building-up his new business whilst Jo works in the local hospital - on the maternity ward. She finds that cuddling babies is great, but night shifts are not. She's going to change to outpatients with more predictable daytime hours in the NY. Their eldest - Sam is now at university in Birmingham studying (.. well you know what I mean!) Business and Economics, whilst Lorna is losing count of how many A-levels she's taking!

Mum is a quarter of a century older than Stuart (he really enjoyed penning those words!) and remains active. She regularly goes out for pub lunches, and enjoys visits from her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. We regularly exchange letters and she still writes beautifully - with firm confident script - not at all like an elderly person.

We hope our short script finds you and your families in good health and:

We Wish You a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

Lots of Love.
